Bradfield College Steeplechase. One-hundred odd boys, I mean, more than a hundred boys start the big annual sporting--

--event of the College. Early in the race R. Morley takes the lead and holds--

--it,;hopping over high hedges is only one--

--of the bits of fun in this strenuous--

--piece of cross-country work. If any runner is getting over-heated, this part--

--of the course will soon cool him down. Getting through this weir--

--is a most mucky and unpleasant business. No starter can claim that he has finished-- --the course unless he goes through the water, and how--

--one would get ragged if he funk'd it. So they all get soaked--

--together. And here is the winner coming in. Wet, and not so very weary.

R. Morley takes the high sporting honour of the School.
