EIGHT TRANS-ATLANTIC FLIGHTS:
FRENCH AIRMAN'S ACHIEVEMENT.

Picture.

The landing of this 'plane makes another air record. I know air records are as plentiful as may bugs, but this one deserves more--

--than honourable mention. Mermoz, the French aviator, comes home to Le Bourget from his eighth crossing of the South Atlantic, and--

--the French Air Minister, General Denain,--

--attends the Aerodrome to give official recognition to--

--this record. Has Britain any air service record to equal this? I am not criticizing!

I am just wondering. Anyway, the French--

--authorities are so impressed with this performance that a squadron of--

--military 'planes was sent up to--

--escort Mermoz home with appropriate--

--pomp, and surely that recognition is well deserved.
