REMEMBRANCE DAY.

1934

DEDICATED TO "THE GLORIOUS DEAD".

The day of memories; of smiling troops, marching---- ---to the strains of joyous bands . Many----- --- memories of partings, fewer memories of re-unions; ghastly memories of----
--- those who---- --- came back. Sad ----
---but brave thoughts----
---of those who---- ---remain behind. The immense----
---crowd all around-----
--- we is flecked with ---- ---red. Haig poppies. Blood red emblems from Flanders fields.
One sees silently streaming tears ---- ---for the dead on faces where the agony of---- --- memory is almost too much to bear-----
---sixteen years ago there were cheers for the living; but NOW-----
---that is not left to us, for---- ---thousands of these living their legacy----
---is eyes that cannot see, ears that cannot hear. Others whose reason-----
---cannot distinguish friend from foe. The horror of war-- ---clouds their minds perpetually. If those we think as well as of the legions of the dead.

J. J. 1890/1

Those unforgotten, that for a great dream died Whose failing sense, darkened on peaks un-won Whose souls went orth upon the wine-dark tide
To seas beyond the sun.

For them it is

The clamouring trumpets break oblivion

Conjuring them to live again-- to return in memory this day and teach us how to live --

-----His Majesty the King attends the service, and is accompanied by His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales-----

--- and His Royal Highness the Duke---

--- of York. The King lays his wreath on the Cenotaph; ~~the~~ ~~the tomb symbolising the sacrifice of each and every one of~~
the tomb symbolising the sacrifice of each and every one of these millions of mother's sons who died in ---- ----the world's unparalleled catastrophe. The Prince of Wales lays his wreath; saluting the shadowy hordes of these patriot souls who fought-----

----to preserve inviolate the sanctity of Throne and Country.

----- EFFECTS etc.

-----(Part Three)

--- The Bishop of London commended this prayerful thought for the Two Minutes Silence which is worth recording; its simplicity and restraint are most appealing

In remembrance of those who made the great sacrifice O, God, make us better men and women and give Peace in our Time.
