

2-899041

HUSSARS FOR EGYPT.
TRANSPORT "NEURALIA" SAILS.

---

Picture.:- Southampton Docks are teeming with soldiers.

The Transport 'NEURALIA'--

--is taking on a human cargo. The eleventh--

--Hussars are embarking for Cairo after four-- --years at Tidworth. Wives, sweethearts, offspring, in-laws, and--

--others are getting their last instructions,--

--and, where circumstances are--

--favourable, their last hugs before the siren blows--

--"all ashore going ashore", and the gangways fall.

Robert takes control of-- --the situation on the dock-side. The Tommies--

--send up cheerful noises to-- --suggest that soldier's don't care, and most-- --of the women play up to their men. But often a--

--glistening eye and a quivering lip give away the deception.

The ship warps away--

--from her berth and Cairo is the next stop.

Happy days for them, and--

--for the waiting women.