BRITISH TROOPS AT CALAIS.

FIRST CONTINGENT OF SAAR ARMY.

Picture.:-

France again welcomes to--
--her shores troops of the-- --British Army. Crowds yell an enthusiastic-- --gaelic cheer as the men step ashore.

A first-aid contingent seems rather prominent.

Just to show--

--we're ready for eventualities I suppose. Full equipment is unloaded--

--and each man is in Christmas Tree war-kit, including steel helmet.

Saarbrucken is their next step,--

--and I hope it will be as pleasant as-- --the tommies look. And I also hope that keeping the peace will--

--have no relation whatsoever to the gathering up of the pieces.
