

HEALTHY BRITISH BOYS.

BOXING ON SCHOOL ROOF.

Picture.:- Bradford trains its boys in the way to grow up-- --graceful and useful. Pupils of St. Joseph's School have a-- --sports-master, who believes-- --in his job. Mr. Kileen now shows the lads how-- --to be useful, and a scrap of theory starts an unofficial argument on practice making perfect.

Here is the right way, as demonstrated under the guidance of the teacher. This is a beginner's class, and the boys just glory in it. It's not always a school-boy can seek--

--his antagonist under the ear, and get marks for it, unless, of course, they're marks--

--in the wrong-- --place. We won't discuss that tender subject. Memory is a sensitive thing. Another method of-- --promoting healthy bodies is pursued at Dalhousie Castle Prep--

--School. Gentler recreation of artistic exercises--

--is indulged in. Bare-footed, the boys receive instruction--

--from Margaret Morris in grace of movement, as borrowed--

--from Egyptian or Greek examples. These movements-- --promote poise and correct breathing, and comprise the boys daily dozen during term time. I am not quite-- --sure whether it develops athletes, or aesthetes, or a bit-- --of both. However, here's a good example of the discipline it teaches. Every picture tells a story, and here's a graceful illustration of the text.
