WINTER COMES SOUTH.

SNOW SPORT IN LONDON.

Picture.:- It's a cold outlook, but--

--here goes ! Finsbury Park is decked out in white for the first time--

--this winter. One thing must be--

--certain. Birds don't suffer from chilblains,--

--and kiddies don't worry about them until they arrive. In the Park it's--

--amusing, but on the roads it's not--

--so funny. Cars slide all over the place. On Hampstead Heath these boys organise their annual ball. A very rare and exclusive affair.

The general view looks like a scene on a Christmas Card. And that's--

--where many prefer it, anyway. For those--

--who hanker after winter sports, at the most popular price, that is free,--

--a snowfall is a welcome change. Here--

--are a number of snow enthusiasts in action. Talk about winter sports, well, each and everyone is a winter sport !

Mind the camera ! This gaiety is all very well, but the snow is unkind to many. Buses are--

--unable to run full service. Frost ridden roads--

--are a danger to coach-drivers and pedestrians alike. And the blizzard which raged round the coasts caused many--

--a skipper untold anxiety for his ship and crew. Still lots find it an excellent excuse for being late at the office.
