 Australian
 A friendly/backwoodsman finds him, and in a--
--short time the aerial ambulance--
--is landing to take up the injured--
--man to be treated in hospital. This is what air-- --transit has done for the up country sheep farmers of Australia. In the old days, many a-- --man was left lamed for life owing-- --to the difficulty of getting broken limbs set by skilled hands. The aeroplane has altered all that--
--and brought the benefits of civilisation closer to-- --the outposts of Empire. This air--
--ambulance is now a feature of Australian--
--modern public service, and every year saves suffering and many lives.
