(1). Picture:- Berlin ! The Germans who are to--
 --compete in the-- --Olympic Games assemble at the-- --City's Opera House to take-- --the Oath of Allegiance. A whole-- --host of distinguished guests occupy the-- --circle of the Theatre;; among-- --them being General Goering.
 (NATURAL SOUND).

(2). Picture:- In Paris the first snowfall envelops the capital in a beautiful cloak of glittering crystals. The Eiffel Tower, the Arc--
 --de Triomphe, and the Troadero, all wear the Weather Clerk's mantle of dazzling white. The car-drivers--
 --forget the beauty, and utter 'cuss--
 --words about the ice-covered, skiddy--
 --roads. School-children are quite happy--
 --about it. The snowman-- --rears his frosty pow, and stands glassy eyed until the thaw.

(3). Picture:- This man's job is sky-gazing. Mr.
 --Walter Thompson gains a living by keeping his weather open for fogs or cloud back-outs. The electric power stations--
 --have to know when dark patches are-- --expected. Otherwise the sudden heavy demand for-- --lighting might, if not anticipated--
 --result in a breakdown. Mr. Thompson telephones warnings of skies--
 --likely to be overcast. If he doesn't, the city would-- --be plunged into darkness, and typists might scream for joy.
