ANGLO FRENCH AIR PACT PLAN.

MOMENTOUS DISCUSSIONS.

Picture.:-

Sir John Simon, Mr. Neville Chamberlain, Mr. Walter Runciman, and Mr. Anthony Eden

--attend the important Anglo-French talks at Downing Street.

From their hotel come Monsieur Flandin--

--and Monsieur Laval, representing the French republic. The result is that Great Britain,--

--who seems to be the key of these situations,--

--and France have reached a security agreement. Let's hope--

--it's a secure security agreement. To a French Embassy luncheon, even ministers must eat, come Mr. Ramsay McDonald,--

--Miss Ishbel MacDonald--

--Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Baldwin, also attend this pleasant break in the long task of talking

--round and listening to arguments.

Sir John Simon straight from Downing Street, and Lady Simon are included-- --in the party and--

--a crowd watches these men and women of the moment.

Messieurs Flandin and Laval deserve, no doubt, their luncheon after the labours of convincing British ministers that Germany is re-arming--

--and that security guarantee between nations is the surest--

--way of avoiding future wars.
