

WILSON RUN.

FELL RACE.

Picture.:-

The Cross-Country Race of selected boys of Sedbergh School, Yorkshire--

--is rather unique. It was instituted 54--

--years ago, by one Bernard Wilson, and it is still called the Wilson Run. Because it is one of the most severe--

--in cross-country running, professional, or amateur, only the fittest--

--of the scholars are permitted--

-- to attempt it. Rocky water crossings make it more difficult,

--and rashness may bring at least a twisted ankle. There are ten trying, tricky--

--miles of this. Robson, a--

--fellow of infinite spurts, got a bad--

--sprain at rigger--

--which kept his training back. Very unfortunate, as his chances of winning were rather bright.

Mercer and Douglas were second and third,

--and D.K. Milligan secured winning honours.
