IRISH GUARDS PARADE.

Picture.:-

The Irish Guards at Wellington Barracks.

An attractive Sunday morning--

--show. St. Patrick's Day is celebrated by the distribution--

--of shamrock. Privileged--

--spectators are allowed inside the square. Colonel--

--Gregson accepts the gift of shamrock sent by the--

--Princess Royal, and hands over most of it for distribution to the Battalion. The rest, Colonel Gregson, in person, hands--

--to his officers. The Battalion has just returned from St. Patrick's Day Mass at Westminster--

--Cathedral. Many of the visitors receive gifts of shamrock.

This one is very pleased. She will probably try to eat it. Other recipients--

--are retired officers of the Regiment.

I think the Three Cheers--

--are for the Princess Royal, and her--

--generous thoughtfulness. The ceremony concludes--

--with a customary march-past. (EFFECTS).
