ANNUAL DISTRIBUTION.

Picture.:- At the Anglesey Hunt, 300--

--years ago, somebody started the humorous idea of heating up pennies, and throwing--

--them amongst the crowd. Very hot - - both the idea,--

--and the pennies. This year the custom is continued--

--by the patroness--

--of the Hunt, Miss Diana Richmond Brown,--

--who throws the pennies out from a--

--shovel which seems to be a sensible method of doing it. However, a penny, hot, or cold, is a penny, and passes--

--as such at tuck-shops. So many youths get their hands trodden--

--on in their--

--anxiety to benefit--

--by Miss Richmond<sup>2</sup>Brown's bounty. As a matter of fact, these pennies are seldom spent. They--

--are usually treasured as mementoes of an old Anglesey custom. Hold it, butterfingers !
