FRENCH MINISTERS IN

POLAND.

CONVERSATIONS IN WARSAW.

---

Picture.:-

All political eyes are turned--

--on Warsaw, Poland's capital. Monsieur Laval, who journeyed--

--from Paris, to discuss a pact with Marshall Pilsudski, arrived--

--when the dictator was seriously ill. He was received by the Marshall's right-hand man, Colonel Beck.

NATURAL SOUND.

The French Foreign Minister laid a --

--wreath on the city's war memorial before proceeding--

--to discuss mutual relations with Colonel Beck.

Now, as we all know, Poland's saviour, as he has been called, is--

--dead. While the people mourn, diplomatists--

--warily tread the political stage. The next act develops.
