MARSHAL PILSUDSKI.

LAST REVIEW AND PASSING.

Picture.:- On November 11th, 1934,--

--Poland's grand old man, Marshal Pilsudski--

--attended a great view of his country's troops, and took the salute. They passed in procession before him. At this time his health--

--was beginning to fail, and the occasion proved to be--

--his last ceremonial salute. The man who raised--

--a distressed Poland from her knees is now-- black

--dead. Above the Belvedere Palace a/flag was--

--flown, and beneath--

--it lay in state the body of the Marshal.

At his funeral, every street and window along--

--the route was filled by citizen mourners. The Marshal was--

--a Dictator who--

--had gained the respect of the people and the world.

500-000 souls did homage to him, as he--

--passed by them for the last time. Tributes to his statesmanship have come from every country,--

--and following his coffin --

--are high officials of almost every government.

Britain is represented by--

--Lord Cavan. While Poland's muffled drums--
