EMPIRE DAY.
AQUATIC EVENTS AT WEMBLEY POOL.

Picture:- A family of British children to--

--the tune of six-thousand watch how Temme, the channel swimmer was fed during his crossing. I said to the tune--

--of six-thousand, and believe--

--me, six-thousand can make some--

--tune. I thought all these demonstrators were school girls, but this makes me uncertain - - broadly speaking. Oh ! Did I mention that this is--

--Empire Day at the-- --Wembley Pool. If I didn't, I do, and it's-- is ! or - - dreadful !

Before the really high spot, various exhibitions are given by champions and--

--then it's the kids--

--turn for a bath. One-thousand at a time, and--

--six-thousand soapy Saturday bath-nights cancelled. Meanwhile--

--at the other side of London - - the Tower, --

--the Royal Fusiliers rehearse for their part in the great--

--Tower Pageant and Tattoo. Squads in costumes worn at the-- --various periods of the Regiment's history look most peculiar and--

--most imposing, These uniforms date from the Peninsular War, 1811.

Under the awesome walls of the Tower, this make-believe assumes almost convincing reality. It makes one's modern--

--clothes seem quite out of place, but it's going-- --to be a great show. Living picture pages from history.
