

AMERICA'S NATIONAL GAME.

BASEBALL IN BRITAIN.

Picture.:- Baseball invades Britain. Bradford Northern Team are playing Manchester Northend, alias--

--blue socks, under American rules, and in the usual disguise adopted--

--by Americans, barring the chewing gum. Mr. G. Fleming--

--American vice-consul starts--

--the match. There's Mr. Wilson as pitcher ! He's--

--also a rugger international player. The striker skies the ball--

--over the foul line.

The pitcher again, crack goes the ball, and the striker becomes base runner for the home plate,--

--in other words, children - - rounders. The rule about the pitcher going to the well once too often has nothing to do with it. Anyway, Manchester Northend win.
