THE PRINCE AT SANDHURST.

GENTLEMAN CADETS REVIEWED.

Picture.:-

Cadets of the Royal Military College, Sandhurst,-- are on parade.

H.R.H. The Prince of Wales arrives to carry out his promise--

--of inspection. The Prince--

--takes the salute of the--

--Gentleman Cadets, (By the way, aren't all-- --cadets gentlemen ?) and threads his way through their ranks, noting the excellence of their bearing and appearance.

Many members of the public-- --watch the ceremonial. Staff-Sergeant Rowe receives a Long-service, and good-conduct--

--medal. Thereafter--

--the cadets march past His Royal Highness-- the column being commanded by Captain Hanning--

--of the Grenadier Guards. In the centre of the line preceding the column the King George V banner is paraded.
Well, it's for the young soldiers to find a Field-Marshal's-- --baton in their nap-sacks. Of course, these are a little too young !
