

OLDE MARKET FAIRE.

VISITED BY HER MAJESTY.

Picture.:-

About one-thousand of Britain's upper ten, responsible for the old-time market and pleasure gardens at Westminster receive--

--a surprise visit from the Queen. Noble ladies of the land, attired in the dress of their great-great-grand-mothers, are presented to Her Majesty.

While many others, whose names grace Debrett's,--

--and whose beauty graces the society picture--

--pages, watch the Queen's royal progress through the remarkably picturesque surroundings. The--

--costumes are extremely attractive. The wearers--

--are more attractive. In fact--

--everything in this garden is lovely.

Dishes of tea are correctly served,--

But handsome blades, waiting for ladies--

--to swoon into their arms are still waiting !

Ah ! me ! Alack-a-day ! The proceeds--

--are in aid of the Westminster Hospital.
