WORLD'S CYCLING CHAMPIONSHIP TRIAL.

FRENCH TEAM WINS AT DONINGTON PARK.

---

Picture.:-

Over fifty starters push off on the world's cycling championship trial at Donington Park. Nine English teams and one French team are competing. The official distance is--

--one hundred miles,--

--thirty-nine laps round the course, but one over the 36 seems more than enough. The English teams--

--might have an excellent chance, if only the Frenchmen--

--would retire. Instead of doing anything

--so polite, the foreign--

--visitors push the pedals so hard that they pass the Englishmen with a lap--

--in hand. The English team gets lots of--

--encouragement, but the French team,--

--the Velo Club of France, passes the post--

--with 12 minutes in hand; Charpentier winning--

--a not too difficult race.
