"JOCKS" OF THE FUTURE.

SCOTTISH SCHOOLBOYS REVIEWED.

Picture:- Every man-Jack, or perhaps I should say man-JOCK, at the Queen Victoria

School, Dunblane, is the son of a Scottish sailor, soldier, or airman. .... This is Annual Inspection Day,

the Inspecting Officer

being Lieutenant-General Sir Harry Knox, Adjutant General to the Forces. ....

The boys give an excellent imitation of regulars as they "Troop the Colour." .....

The wiggle and the waggle of the kilt, and the swing of the sporan makes a spectacular scene as the boys march past the Adjutant General.

..... Each little man is destined to become a Soldier of the King, unless he happens to prefer to be a Sailor or Airman. ....

The "jolly old Sergeant-Major" must be exceedingly proud of his 'little men'. They are certainly doing him credit.

Perhaps the best compliment

I can pay these lads is to say that each one is a "chip of the old block."
