The Colours of the 25th Regiment, now the King's Own Scottish Borderers, were issued in 1797. .... They were carried in the Dutch Campaign two years later, and also in Egypt in 1801. .... Now they are to be laid up for evermore in the National Shrine at Edinburgh Castle. .... A strong breeze is blowing, causing the tattered old 'bits of rag' to flutter proudly as they pass down the ranks for the last time, before being carried into the hallowed memorial for the brief ceremony inside. .... Henceforward the battle-scarred old veterans are to lay in peaceful ud'

surroundings until the end of time.
