

C-SPD 171

ROUGH RIDING IN DERBYSHIRE.
CLAYTON TROPHY TRIAL.

Picture.:- Motor-cycle trials in the lovely hills of Derbyshire.

Several women have taken their place among the starters for the Clayton Trophy; the event organised by the Wood Green & District Motor Club. It's more of a bouncing contest than a race. It's strenuous. One has to cling to the seat like a dumb Member of Parliament.

This shot proves that women are better bouncers than men. There's something elastic about them. The course is muddy awful - - awfully maddy ! - - in spots, so the bouncing is replaced by wading.

Somewhere underneath the mud is the famous Creft bottom and a lot of bicycle. These trials are more like tribulations.