DOOMED CHURCH.

FAREWELL SERVICE.

Picture.:-

Amid the beauties of Lakeland, a doomed Church. The Lord Mayor of Manchester and the Bishop of Carlisle are among the visitors to its last service. With it are doomed many cottages, old historic Dun Bull Hotel, and picturesque farmsteads.

Lakeland dwellers, together with their families, furniture, and general belongings, live-stock, etc., must shortly desert their homes, as the old Church in the vale is to be deserted, after to-day. The Church accommodates about sixty people.

For this last service fifteen-hundred turned up, and took part in the farewell. The Church's future congregation will be fish darting in and out of its windows and doors.

The green valley will be a reservoir for Manchester's water supply. Soon the trickle will commence, growing,

later into a devouring cascade,

which will flood the valley, submerging all therein.
