Music Hall artistes are often said to raise the roof. That's mere metaphor, but here are one-hundred workmen raising the roof in reality. And what is more, the roof weighs one-thousand tons.

54 jacks are turned on the whistle blow, and up goes the roof one-sixteenth of an inch.

This unique operation is taking place at Kidderminster. The factory needs another storey added to its accommodation, and this is the way it is done. As the roof goes up, so a new wall rises underneath it. When finished, the building will be sixteen feet higher. Well, all together, lads !

(WHISTLE BLOW).
