

ENGLISH WOMEN'S GOLF.

CHAMPIONSHIP AT BIRKDALE.

Picture.:- The weather was in its unkindest mood for the final day of the English Women's Championship.

However, it would take more than rain to keep golf enthusiasts away from the final, which was between Miss Elsie Corlett, here driving, and the former Essex and German Champion, Mrs. Garon.

From the 12th hole of the second round, the players remained "all square" up to the 39th.

This has never before happened in an English final; so the players are responsible for a little bit of golf history.

The first of the two extra holes was halved, but the 38th gave Mrs. Garon the victory.

It is fairly safe to say that it was the best final ever played in the English Women's Championship - - it was certainly the longest ! Both players deserve full marks.
