

C-898141
C-898141

NEWS IN BRIEF.

(A). Picture:- In London, St. Paul's Cathedral is the scene of many honourable Church Parades, but this one must be doubly honourable, since it is the annual parade of the Honourable Artillery Company. The twenty-six officers and four-hundred other ranks are under the command of Lord Fortescue, Colonel-Commandant. Before the Company reach St. Paul's, they march past the Mansion House; the Lord Mayor returning their salute. About the same time as this tidy affair

(B) was taking place, a terrific gale was making the North Country very untidy. At Gorton, Manchester, the wind, not stopping to rush over this wall, just blew it down. That's what I call really dropping a brick!
