

NEWS IN BRIEF.

(A). Picture.:- One day someone may claim that he has found an Inn which Dick Turpin never entered, stayed at, or was hidden in, but while we are waiting, here is
The Olde Belles, Cuseley, near Windsor, at which the highway man criminal frequently visited. Queen Elizabeth also came to it from Windsor, but not with Dick Turpin, I believe. Now it's coming down for a modern hotel to be built upon the site. And speaking of

(B) sights, here's a fine mother with her triplets. Her name is Blossom. So she will probably say her off-spring are cowslips. Her calves are much admired. Pairs are attractive enough, but three at a time made father's eyes roll some.

The parents are owned by Mr. Bowner, of Warfield, near Windsor. The sire being Knockterre Flashby. And I'll say he is !

(c). Picture.:- This film is a fire film of a film fire. Part of Twickenham Film Studios looked just like this, for a photograph cannot lie. Luckily the fire was prevented from spreading to the new buildings, and only this,
