

2-54P171

NEWS IN BRIEF.

(D). Picture.

While they gnash their teeth,
Crouch End is glad. Their fine new Town Hall is just about to be opened by the Duke of Kent, who, by the way is deputising for the Duke of Gloucester, who is rather preoccupied at the moment.

The new building is worthy of royal inauguration.
It cost

one-hundred-and-twenty-thousand pounds, and the Duke's

congratulations to the Council and the residents were a just and royal reward, for a notable achievement.