After the flat comes steeple-chasing. Here's the start of the Motor-cycle Grand National at Holecombe Moor, near Bury, Lancashire. 53 competitors have left - Midlothian - Wiltshire, Kent, Staffordshire, Warwickshire, Hampshire, and all sorts of shires, to bump over Holecombe Moor. Well, if they haven't got it now, they will have a tender spot for Holecombe Moor after this. They say they do it because they like it. Anyway, it's a long way to come for a bath, which has lost its bed and breakfast. Quite a number are well-known cyclists. Good sportsmen, although one could hardly call them clean riders. Watch that corner, and you know they're clever anyhow. After his cycle had suffered untold hardships, the winner is J. Williams of Gloucestershire, who secures the steeplechasing trophy for the South.
