

AFTER THE LANDSLIDE.

CLEARING THE CHARTREUSE REGION.

---

Picture.:- The figure of Christ which dominated the Monastery of Grande Chartreuse survived the terrible landslide which wrecked the rest of the buildings. But it had to be removed. The ruins would not support it. Care is taken to save the bits and pieces of the Distillery which gave the world the famous liqueur Chartreuse. The imitators of this monkish spirit will now have a clear run for the time. All the walls must come down. It is the destruction of fifty million francs worth of capital. However, plans are already on foot to rebuild. Until then we must be content with just Grande Marnier. Isn't it dreadful ?

(EFFECTS TO END)