

DAME FASHION'S "LAST WORD"
FOR GOLD AND NOT-SO-COLD WEATHER.

If you were thinking of buying a fur coat, if you can afford it, or even if you can't, you might get an idea from one of these minxes, (I mean the coats!)

Familiarity

with these would put you in the lap of luxury. Coats like these would warm the most frigid feminine heart. "That's a nice model, madam! Only 400 guineas!"

And I'll say that's a nice model! But who was she biting her finger at! Think you?

Or what about an ermine evening wrap? Complete with its fetching monks-hood. Looks too true to be good. Oh, you grand duchess!

And then, there's hats, or there will be when inspiration and the Parisian artist has finished playing around. "My dear, where have I seen you before?"

Whenever a new idea is required, they look up what Ann Boleyn or Nell Gwyn wore, and swear it's new and charge double the price. How's this for a luncheon party? All depends on who the party is, I know. But let's stick to hats. For the informal dinner, toque draped in black velour, with band of deep red plumes.

Oh yes! This is specially for the cocktail party, Designed to avoid slipping too far over the left eye in moments of alcoholic exhilaration or following hiccoughs.

And this lovely bonnet for the theatre. Antelope skin, edged with turquoise velour. With beautifully embroidered blind - - er - veil, to pull down at closing time!
