

CANINE COMPANIONS.

JANUARY PARTINGS.

Picture.:- The Superintendent of Manchester's Home for Lost Dogs, Mr. Sanderson, deals with over 200 animals a week. Most of the poor little fellows are lost because their owners can't afford to pay for the new licence. In their pathetic eyes is a wonder why Master, or Mistress, doesn't come and take them home. Some get adopted by dog-lovers.

Others don't get the luck. They just wonder and wait. Many sympathisers come to say good-bye to the friendless ones. Once somebody's pets. The Saturday's unclaimed get poor reward for loyalty. Sunday their pens are silent and empty. I was so touched that I decided to adopt one, and called it 'Jeff'. What about you're doing the same ?
