ELEPHANTS FOR ENGLAND.

Picture.:-

If any-one wants a new pet for their flat, here's an opportunity of securing one. A herd of elephants just about to be exported from Germany to England. They're quite tame, and generally good-mannered, only, of course, accidents will occasionally happen among the best regulated elephants.

Oh, excuse his smile !

Hamburg Docks are rather like a zoo to-day - - well - - a zoo aquarium, because there are also a few thousand live fish being loaded. Special fish, with angel like wings, and wavy fishy draperies flowing from them. Rare varieties being sent to America for exhibition, and with them go twenty-thousand Harz mountain roller canaries. The live stock receives special care from a busy experienced staff.

What with elephants at one end, and canaries at the other, it's the big and little things that count !
