

DAVIS

CUP

DRAW

LORD MAYOR OF LONDON
PRESIDES.

---

Picture.:-

Never before has the Mansion House seen a scene - - yes, that's right! - - seen a scene like this one, when the Lord Mayor and Lady Mayoress attend a meeting to draw for the Davis Cup competition. The Lord Mayor presides.

The event claims the interest of representatives of 23 nations, and possibly your interest too, if you are a tennis 'fan'. If not, well, the big picture after this will soon put that right! The Lord Mayor conducts the draw, supported by Lawn Tennis Association officials. The Cup looks a piece of silver plate worth any house-busters consideration.

There are a number of notable absentees. Not, however, influenced by any lack of interest in lawn tennis itself. Italy is not here this year. (Political reasons I believe!) Japan says it's too expensive, and absent South Africa competes only every other year. Britain won't appear until the challenge cup round at Wimbledon.
