SCOTLAND'S STRONGEST
FIREMAN

DISPLAY OF MIGHT.

Picture.

Of all the stalwart men of the Edinburgh Fire Brigade, one man stands out as a fire-fighting Hercules. So sit back lazily and watch. Jim Evans resists a couple of tug-of-war teams with the grip of one hand.

The combined efforts of eight men break his grip only after seconds of hefty hauling. But he was only playing then. Now he's going to get serious. Has anybody around got a grand piano? Oh, it doesn't matter.

This 5 ft 3" pocket Hercules, who himself weighs only ten stone, permits nine brigade members to tread on him.

I said permits, because if he didn't permit, I don't think even the captain would chance it. Just to finish his little exercise Jim lifts a 18 stone fireman with his left hand. A blow from him should put out almost any ordinary fire. Thanks, Jim !!!
