NEWS IN BRIEF

(C) Picture.:-

Sir Walter Womersley, Assistant-Postmaster-General franks letters which will be carried by the first direct airmail service to the Scandinavian countries.

The pilot of the mail plane receives the pennant of the service. This speedy Post Office scheme is given free, well, not free, but for no extra charge beyond the ordinary postal rates, which is something in these days of 5/- in the pound taxes. Deliveries will be daily.

The mails are stowed in the nose of the machine, so they will be there almost before the 'plane. Now, if you want something for nothing out of the government, sit down and write shoals of letters to Scandinavia.
