

2-P45541

LEAGUE OF NATIONS

VITAL MEETING IN LONDON.

---

PICTURE:-

Political events again form the high lights of the news. The venue is St. James's Palace, and the occasion - the League of Nations Meeting, at which Germany attends.

Herr Von Ribbentrop is the central figure of Herr Hitler's delegation. In fact he is the delegation. While the League members assemble he has a chat with Mr. Bruce, the Council's chairman. Among the statesmen you will recognise Signor Grandi, Italy, facing the camera, Monsieur Paul Boncour, with his grey leonine head, and Monsieur Litvinoff, Russia, also leonine, and shaggier, but not so white. This is the first time in history that a meeting of this kind has been held in a British royal palace. Not that that really matters,

It is the outcome of the Conference which is the real news, and it's something to know that the Locarno Powers have reached agreement. After an exceptionally outspoken statement, Herr Von Ribbentrop, his interpreters, secretaries and under-secretaries, take their departure. A moment's pause to pose for the camera, and then away. AND NOW WHAT ?