

085541

INTERNATIONAL FOOTBALL.

The bonnets are over the border. Mind ye, it's gey haired to ken whit they say but, och, it disna' matter Its either whusky or Wembly they ask for or both.

And about half of this 90,000 are Scots watching twenty two of Britains finest soccer players. Scotland V. England, for the International Championship. To retain the laurels, England must win, while if Scotland can only draw, she will take the title. She is already one point up on England, so to win, she has only to maintain equal points in this match In the last Wembly meeting,

Scotland was beaten by three to nil. This time England again scored first. Camsell receiving a beautiful feed from Bastin. Scotland's defence was dogged and her attacks fierce and dangerous. Both teams were at the top of their form with Scotland having, I think, a slight advantage in thrusting quality. Mc Culloch did well, and justified his selection. The battle of great football ended in a draw, one one, so the Scots take home the Championship.