CRISIS IN EGYPT.

26/2/54.

Less than two years ago, Egypt was echoing to the cheers for a new hero..... General Neguib, who sent King Farouk into exile, and later became Prime Minister and President. Now, some of those followers who swept the General into office, have swept him out again. It is maintained in Cairo, that since the King's abdication, the real push and power in Egypt, has rested with a committee of eleven. Whether that is true or not is hard to say; but, for the time being at least, the committee's got the power and the General's got the push.
