

Extra big crowds came out for a romantic occasion in New York; a wedding. The bride is Miss Patricia Kennedy --- one of the daughters of a former American Ambassador to Britain. And the bridegroom is British - born Peter Lawford, now a popular actor on the screens from Hollywood.

FLOWER FESTIVAL.

When they hold a Flower Festival in Holland, it's something more than the usual floral fête you get from some other countries. For in Holland the bulb-and-flower business is big business. Flowers are the language of love; but the recent increase in cases of breach of promise <sup>suggests</sup> ~~hints~~ that when the modern young man says it with a tulip bulb his fiancée gets an onion.

KING OF DENMARK.

More news from Holland; the State Visit of King Frederik and Queen Ingrid of Denmark..... when King Frederik drove through the streets with Queen Juliana --- and Queen Astrid with Prince Bernhard.

MOTOR CYCLE RECORDS.

From Germany --- here's a new <sup>style</sup> ~~design~~ of motor cycle attacking world speed records on the Munich Autobahn.

And --- subject to confirmation --- seven records were broken. Driver and designer of this new-style speed waggon was Adolf Baum.

SKITTLE CHAMPIONS.

In Windsor, Ontario, crowds gathered to watch the skittle-aces compete for the Canadian championships.

And the ladies, too. Their smashing action suggests the Canadian housewife could learn to fling a formidable flat-iron.

All right --- you've been warned!

UNDERWATER FASHIONS.

The point of this underwater Fashion Show in Silver Springs is to show that a new kind of fabric is not only washable --- but that however wet it gets, a frock will always keep its shape.

Lead on Cameron! Good, isn't it? But somebody's got the wrong idea if they think we go to a fashion show to look at the shape of the frocks.
