

In the Cathedral at Bonn, Lotte Adenauer, schoolteacher daughter of the Chancellor of the Federal Government of Western Germany, was married to Herr Multhaupt, an architect. The bride received the customary congratulations from her father, after the ceremony which was performed by her brother.

STRONG GIRL.

Twelve-year-old April Atkins in training at Santa Monica is said to be the strangest girl of her age in all the world. Even if she isn't, it'll be a job to find anyone to give her an argument. To carry off three men and a woman you've got to use plenty of strength. It's sad to think that when she grows up Miss Atkins'll find out --- to carry off a husband you don't use your ~~xxxxxxx~~ arms.

FASHIONS FOR TALL GIRLS.

cue in start up on 11.

There used to be a song that said: Why do short men like tall girls? and nobody ever found the answer. On top of that it's a well-known fact that for years the fashion designers, have ignored the lasses with the long limbs. But now --- to show there's a change of heart -- the giraffes in the New York Circus had a visit from four top models -- in clothes specially built for lofty ladies. So now at last there's hope --- for the kind of girl the Laughing Cavalier could have kissed without getting off his horse.

FISHING TOURNAMENT.

Off the holiday islands of the Bahamas, the little ships are out for an international fishing meeting. The fish they're after are the White Marlin --- and when you've got one on the end of your line it's then the battle begins.

It's really a tug-o'-war between a man and a fish; whichever wins is entitled to eat the other.

FISH STORY.

cue in start 15

In the little village of Camogli in Italy's Gulf of Genoa, they held a fish fair in honour of St Fortunato. The entire day's catch was fried in pans five yards across --- ten thousand pounds of fish, fried in two thousand gallons of oil. The smell was so powerful it attracted customers from the other side of the Bay of Naples and Vesuvius said "pardon me!" and erupted.
