

A huge and enthusiastic gathering greeted Sir Winston Churchill, before his speech to Women Conservatives at the Albert Hall in London; and it is worthy of note that the Prime Minister is able to carry off with a flourish a situation that might well unnerve many a lesser man. ^{Flowers were} ~~The banquet~~ was charmingly presented by ^{the} little ~~Terence Bennett~~, ^{grand-daughters} ~~daughters~~ of the meeting's chairman. Sir Winston spoke of many matters --- including the trials that beset us in the British Isles to-day.

He continued on a welcome note of hope for the future.
