

The Duchess of Kent was accompanied by her daughter Princess Alexandra, when she arrived at the ~~xxxxxx~~ airfield in Ulster on a five-day visit to Northern Ireland. She was welcomed by the Governor, Lord Wakehurst, who presented the R.A.F. Station Commander. This was the first visit ~~of Princess Alexandra~~ to Northern Ireland by the Princess, who is growing up gracefully into the round of royal family duties.

CIXTY GUIDE.

Near St Paul's Cathedral in the City of London is a little unveiling ceremony of a little gadget that contains a big idea. It's a system that is already in operation in many countries overseas --- and when you ask a policeman in future, he'll just be able to refer you to the guide. This will leave him more time for telling you where to go when you want to park your car. Before long, more guides will be installed, in public buildings, and in other prominent places out of doors.

CAR RACING.

One of the most important and exciting of the season's Continental racing dates, is the "International" on the Nurburgring in Germany. And although the un-subsidised British seldom get a look-in among the big boys--- they're usually out in front in Formula III: This year it was a battle between Stirling Moss, and Stewart Lewis-Evans --- and Moss in a Cooper-Norton was the winner. Lewis-Evans's car stalled just short of the finishing-line, but he pushed it home to share some of the glory with the winner.

QUEEN MOTHER AT CORYTON.

Queen Elizabeth the Queen Mother arrived by P.L.A Launch, when she journeyed to the ⁵ new oil refinery at Coryton ³.

This installation which Her Majesty is now opening on the north bank of the Thames, was formerly a ⁶ storage-depot ^{speech}.

Then --- the unveiling of a plaque to commemorate the royal visit. In six years, this business has expanded from a capital of two millions to twenty --- and ~~Coryton~~ will process a million tons of oil each year.
