

At the Headquarters of the Allied Powers in Europe, the Duke of Edinburgh met Field Marshal Montgomery and the American General Gruenther, during his three-day visit to France. The Duke had travelled from Britain in a plane which he ~~him~~ had piloted himself.

On the airfield at Bretigny, His Royal Highness ~~watched an informal~~ inspected Air Display at which ~~many~~ many of which the aircraft ~~engaged~~ were still on the secret list.

Later, at the historic Chateau of Fontainebleau, the Duke was welcomed by France's Marshal Juin.

From France, the Duke went on to Luneberg in Germany. He was welcomed by the Commanding Officer of the Queen's Own Cameron Highlanders.

At the inspection of the 1st Battalion of this famous regiment, Prince Philip was presented with a Scottish claymore.