

CHIMPS' TEA PARTY.

This was a special tea party in Dublin given by Chimps Jacko and Sally in honour of the cast of the Globe Theatre. Needless to say, on such an important occasion our cameraman was all present if not correct. <sup>10</sup>/~~10~~

They say the good host is one who mixes with his guests and sees that everybody gets enough to eat; Jacko mixed with the guests all right --- but when it came to eating, he decided that charity begins at home. <sup>9</sup>/~~4~~

Unfortunately about this time our cameraman started having a little trouble with the magic box; so when the guests were leaving they told the cameraman they hoped the film would come out all right; ~~ixixixix~~ <sup>9</sup> he said it would. <sup>10</sup>/~~6~~

Coming back to London --- here are the Penguins at ~~the~~ Regent's Park going to look at the new arrivals at the London Zoo. First of all --- a little baby llama, looking very much on the alert. <sup>10</sup>

~~X~~ In the new Australian section, there's a baby kangaroo named Candy --- who is still rather shy.

~~X~~ <sup>16-17</sup> The baby zebra's name is George. But the star of the autumn season is undoubtedly Maud, the giraffe, who has given birth to baby Chris. When these pictures were taken Chris was only a few days old.

~~X~~ <sup>29</sup> Here Mother Maud gives a useful demonstration of how to look over a tall man at a football match. <sup>32</sup>/~~4~~

Giraffes are among the fastest runners on earth --- ~~xxxxxyxixixix~~ so it's a nice thought that baby Chris was <sup>named</sup> ~~named~~ after Chris Chataway. <sup>5</sup>/~~2-3~~

END OF IRISH

Tip