

REMEMBRANCE DAY.

9/11/54.

In Whitehall --- this Remembrance Day of 1954 --- members of Government and Opposition came down to the Cenotaph to attend the annual service in memory of our glorious dead. ... followed by Her Majesty the Queen and the Duke of Edinburgh... to stand among the people who waited to pay their yearly homage.

The people stir; as Trumpets sound the Last Post.

And the first of many wreaths, in memory of those who gave their lives in two World Wars, is laid by Queen Elizabeth.

At the end of the service, the traditional hymn is sung.

And the old soldiers march past; with memories one year older --- but with remembrance ever bright and clear.
