

Princess Margaret paid literally a flying visit to Germany to present new Colours to the 1st Battalion, The Suffolk Regiment, of which she is Colonel-in-Chief. This parade was at Wuppertal, near Bonn.

In <sup>London</sup> Britain --- once again in the hope of a summery summer, the Pleasure Gardens at Battersea opened to the public, And for opening day there was a crowd of film stars making the merry-go-round go round.

Amongst the happy crowd, our camera spotted Jill Adams and Julia Arnell, in a group with <sup>your own commentator</sup> ~~Robert Beatty~~ & Terence Morgan, chatting to Peter Finch. Donald Sinden was among those in demand for ~~xxx~~ autographs --- and Jack Hawkins had some signing to do, combined with another naval role.

Others who heard the call of the sea were Jill Adams and Michael Craig.

Also in Battersea, <sup>was</sup> ~~ix~~ Mlle. Andree Jan --- who was going up by helicopter to fly over Chelsea Reach. But this was another funfair attraction; it had nothing to do with the proposed short cut to London Airport.

Now --- fasten your safety-belt; she's going to take off

And here's a new way of straphanging when your arms are full of parcels.

And --- on the ground not far from Chelsea Reach --- in the grounds of the famous Hospital --- the annual Chelsea Flower Show.

As always --- this lovely show was honoured with a visit from the <sup>QUEEN AND THE</sup> Queen Mother. And --- as ~~xxxxxx~~ always --- ~~xxxxxx~~ the gardeners of the British Isles had triumphed over the difficulties of ~~the~~ home-grown weather to produce a display of unequalled grace and charm.
