In the London salon of Simone Mirman is the autumn and winter collection of hats for 1955; and it may be design or coincidence that there's a Russian Cossack touch about some of them in keeping with the improvement of east-west relations. The designer tells us that the object of these models is to emphasise the character of the face. And of course there's no doubt that a woman can change her character as easily as she can change her hat; and in about half the time it takes her to change her face.

This is known as the white swansdown coolie.

We shall think of Old Baghdad if we see this ax in New Brighton. With The models concealing the hair are said to enhance the mystery of the eyes and they also give a silent rebuke to the escort who turns up with a five-o'clock shadow.

Yess ---- this season it's all Oriental. Isn't it amazing to think that a simple little hat can give the slinky allure of the eastern kexaers have to the debutante who only a year ago was always full-back exxes in the hockey team?
