

Jewish ex-Servicemen and women were assembled on the Horse Guards' Parade in London for the annual service of remembrance to those who gave their lives in the two World Wars. This year, they were inspected by General Sir Gerald Templer; ~~as~~ as always, many had made long journeys to pay homage to their fallen comrades.

These were the representatives of many thousands who served with the British armed forces in all theatres of war --- marching to the Cenotaph in memory of those who died. ~~xxxxxxxxxxxxxxxx~~
